

Dear Friends,

Welcome to the Holistic Child Health Newsletter.

The goal of my holistic pediatric practice, and of this newsletter, is to inform and support parents to become more empowered as the primary health care providers for their children.

Extending far beyond Western medicine's conventional treatments, holistic medicine and mindful parenting allow us to boost children's natural immunity, support their optimum health and wellness, safely heal any illnesses, and prevent disease-without dangerous side effects. Holistic medicine provides us with the tools to nurture the physical, emotional, social and spiritual health of your children.

Over the coming months and years, I intend to use this newsletter to address some of your concerns as parents, share information that you might want to add to your knowledge base, and inform you of important issues and current events that are happening in the news, and in your area.

Together we can heal the whole child. Naturally.

Yours in Health,

Lawrence B. Palevsky, MD

ACTION ALERT

From Our Friends at Our Kids Our Choice...

NY Times Calls for Eliminating Religious and Secular Exemptions!
NY, CT and ME moving on ending exemption.

And so it begins... The New York Times is calling for the elimination of religious and secular exemptions from forced vaccination in the US.

Read the piece here:

<https://nyti.ms/2TgMd8R>

As the most influential media outlet among corporate "progressives" in the United States, this editorial is the equivalent of a declaration of war. Earlier this week the World Health Organization identified 'vaccine resistance' as a top-ten threat to global health, which suggests a coordinated public relations campaigns. Serious efforts are underway in Connecticut and Maine to eliminate non-medical exemptions there, and we expect an effort to begin any day now in New York. All three states had Democrats take control of both legislative houses and the Governorship in the last election. We expect other states to follow.

Please contact your legislators and let them know you support keeping the religious exemptions to vaccines. Find them at:

nysenate.gov

nyassembly.gov

Meet with them, write them, get to know them so they support you- and get friends and family to do the same.

The Times is calling for the elimination of a basic human right using the sky-is-falling rhetoric with no basis in fact. Religious exemptions, and secular exemptions in 19 states, are as old as mandatory vaccines. Forty-seven states have them, as well most of the developed democracies progressives point to as examples of good health policy: Canada, the UK, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium, Japan, etc. There is no evidence to indicate that the tiny number of students who have exemptions are any threat to public health. And this proposal completely tramples any conventional understanding of religious liberties guaranteed by the First Amendment.

Since 1986 when vaccine manufacturers and physicians were relieved of any legal liability for injuries caused by their products, the number, sales and profitability of vaccines have exploded. In 1986, 24 vaccine doses were recommended for American children, today it is more than 80 doses. Nonetheless, uptake of vaccines are still at all-time highs. "Nationally, coverage with vaccines recommended by the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP) for children aged 19–35 months remains high and stable," according to the CDC's analysis of the most recent numbers, and less than 1% of all children have never received a vaccine. Yet the Times claims vaccination rates are falling.

Sales and profits have never been higher for the four massive drug corporations, Merck, Pfizer, Sanofi and Glaxo that control more than 80% of the global vaccine market, which are expected to continue growing for the foreseeable future. The drug industry is both the second largest advertiser in the United States (after cars), and the largest source of political campaign contributions.

The Times pays special attention to a few small outbreaks of measles (58 cases in NY), a mild childhood disease that used to be the grist for sitcoms in the 1960s and 70s, and the Gardasil vaccine for human papilloma virus (which is only mandated in two states.) No mention is made of the global controversy surrounding Gardasil, which Japan pulled from its list of recommended vaccines for safety reasons. The only measles and HPV vaccines licensed in the US are made by one company: Merck. Could the Times be looking after the best interests of an advertiser rather than public health? Nah.
